

FROM MINDSEYE AND LIGHTHOUSE

To all the attendees of the 2024 National Beep Baseball Association World Series:

As Presidents & CEOs of MindsEye and Lighthouse for the Blind – St. Louis, we have witnessed firsthand what a truly accessible experience can do for the blind & low vision community. That's the experience we aim to deliver to beep baseball players, coaches, and volunteers as we host the NBBA Beep Baseball World Series in 2024.

MindsEye and Lighthouse are acting as co-hosting organizations and will provide unique opportunities that the NBBA has never been afforded by host cities. With MindsEye, the NBBA will be working with an organization that has been tapped into the local community 24/7, 365 days a year for the past 50 years with robust programs that help the blind & low vision community of the St. Louis metro area and beyond.

MindsEye's Audio Description and Broadcast Information Programs will be incorporated into the event, providing participants with accessible cultural experiences.

Lighthouse for the Blind – St. Louis bring an incredible history and connection to the community as a provider of quality employment for individuals who are blind or have low vision for almost 90 years. With extensive outreach programs that serve youth throughout the Midwest will also assist in bringing the next generation of Beep Baseball players to the World Series.

St. Charles, Missouri is a part of the St. Louis region which has been nicknamed "Baseball Heaven." It will be a privilege to show that is also "BeepBall Heaven" in 2024

MindsEye President & CEO

Eric Warnhoff
Lighthouse for the Blind - St.Louis President & CEO

FROM THE PRESIDENT

Jerry Windell

To our NBBA athletes, volunteers, fans, and supporters:

I would personally like to welcome you to the 2024 World Series of Beep Baseball. As someone who has been a long-time baseball fan, I can't think of a better place to host the National Beep Baseball Association's (NBBA) World Series than the home of the St Louis Cardinals. Missouri, and particularly St Louis, has been a hotbed for baseball over the years and is a natural fit to host the NBBA World Series.

If this is your first year attending the World Series or watching beep baseball in person, you will be witness to some of the very best visually impaired or blind athletes in the world. The athletic abilities of athletes who are visually impaired or blind hitting a pitched ball, running to base, and fielding a batted ball should truly amaze you. Also, the contribution of those with sight who help coach, pitch, catch, spot, umpire, score keep, base operate, and volunteer are an integral part of the game.

I have been a member of the NBBA for 43 years and recognize the importance of all who contribute to the ability of our great game to be played. For those who produce our equipment, provide transportation to those who can't see, fund our local teams and the national organization, and to those who organize our Regional Tournaments and World Series, you have my deepest gratitude and appreciation.

Have a great time while here in St Louis/St Charles and play hard, stay safe, and let the NBBA know of anything that we can do to improve your experience at the World Series.

Jerry Windell
NBBA President

FROM THE 1ST VP

Cassie Hopkins

Hey NBBA Family,

We are excited to be in “Baseball Heaven” for the 2024 World Series in St. Charles/St. Louis, Missouri. It is a blessing to be in our 48th year of the National Beep Baseball Association, and each year seems to get better and better. I love this amazing beep baseball family – the dedicated players, the hardworking volunteers, and the amazing supporters from our host city. I hope that everyone who steps out on the fields in one of those capacities, will continue to be a part of this amazing sport in one way or another for years to come.

We could not be having this World Series without all the hard work that has been put in by Jason Frazier of MindsEye and Eric Warnhoff of the Lighthouse for the Blind – St. Louis and their hardworking teams/committees – THANK YOU for all you have done and continue to do to make this our best World Series yet.

While we are in St. Charles/St. Louis, I hope that you will check out all these cities have to offer – it is a beautiful area with a rich history. We are grateful that we can take advantage of/enjoy all the things in the community that MindsEye does to make many more experiences accessible for the blind/visually impaired.

Thank you to each of you in the beep baseball community that work tirelessly, whether it be as an athlete, a volunteer, a cheerleader, live-streamer, financial supporter, etc. Each of you are the reason that this sport continues to grow.

I am always here to help in any way that I can – just ask. I want to keep bringing awareness to this sport and the awesome athletes that play it.

Stay safe this week, play with heart, and stay hydrated... let's play ball!

Cassie Hopkins

1st Vice President/World Series Tournament Director

HISTORY OF BEEP BASEBALL

There are two conventional ways to enjoy baseball, as a fan or as a player. Though only a small percentage of players make it into the major leagues, thousands of people, at varying degrees of success and levels, joyously charge out to their positions on fields and sand lots to the cry of "play ball". Nearly 60 years ago, that privilege was not an option for persons who lacked sufficient vision to play the game. Regardless of their desire and potential skill, these people had no option to play in a baseball game, as the game was sighting people only.

A solution in 1964 when Charles Fairbanks, an engineer with Mountain Bell Telephone, presented the blind community with a momentous gift, the first beep baseball. Fairbanks implanted a small beeping sound module inside a normal-sized softball. The Telephone Pioneers of America developed basic playing rules and devised a set of cone-shaped, rubber bases that contained sound units to emit a high-pitched whistle. These efforts laid the foundation for the game and play began in schoolyards across the country.

Unfortunately, the Telephone Pioneers' well-intentioned game of beep baseball did not receive the anticipated response and adoption. The equipment frequently did not function properly and visually impaired players had a difficult time sorting out the conflicting sound of the beeping ball and the whistling base. The playing rules were also very restrictive and protective equipment of face masks and chest pads were mandatory. Recreational rehab instructors soon found out that the players were not responding to the game because it moved too slow and provided little action or challenge.

In the spring of 1975, a very important event happened when the Minnesota Telephone Pioneers presented John Ross, Director of the Braille Sports Foundation (BSF), with a newly designed beep ball. The new ball was a 16-inch ball with an improved sound module designed to withstand the impact of solid hits. Ross took the ball and, along with some of his other blind friends, began experimenting with new rule adaptations to make the game more like regular baseball.

Word of the experimental game spread across the Mississippi River to a group of blind athletes in St. Paul. Dennis Huberty, organizer of the St. Pautites, contacted Ross and competitive beep baseball was born. The two teams engaged in weekend games throughout the summer and wrote a new set of guidelines that became known as the Minnesota Rules. The concept was a modified version of baseball that would allow the visually impaired to play the sport with honor and dignity.

Feeling Sports, a monthly publication of the Braille Sport Foundation, started carrying accounts and results of the experimental games between BSF and St. Paul. Phoenix and San Francisco also took interest and a series of games was set for later that fall.

To ensure the success of beep baseball, Feeling Sports held a meeting to discuss the future of the game. Though only twelve people arrived at the preliminary meeting, the "dirty" dozen were able to address the future goals and objectives for the new National Beep Baseball Association (NBBA). It was here that plans were put in place to hold the first Beep Baseball World Series that coming September

The championship series was set at Dunning Field in St. Paul. This was a good facility for spectators, but the dirt field was hard on the players. After all the dust had finally settled, the tournament was declared a major success.

More than 1,500 fans filled the bleachers to cheer the local St. Paul Gorillas on to the first NBBA national championship by beating the Phoenix Thunderbirds by a score of 36 to 27.

Successfully conducting the first World Series of Beep Baseball provided the kind of clout and credibility the NBBA needed to assume the role as the governing body of competitive beep baseball. In the years since the initial games and rules were established, beep baseball has spread both nationally and internationally and evolved into a highly competitive game for visually impaired athletes. Each year, the sport continues to grow with new teams, fans and support.

Tools for Success:

Review the different equipment needed for playing beep baseball at:

<http://www.nbba.org/equipment>

Identify if a team is located near you:

<http://www.nbba.org/teams>

Attend regional tournaments or practices, if possible, to observe how other organized teams handle various situations, practices and team procedures. Each team adopts its own character and methods. However, there are similarities that have resulted from experience. Next, obtain a copy of the official N.B.B.A. Rules.

They can be reviewed or downloaded from this link:

DAN TRACY AWARD

Dan Tracy joined the NBBA in the Mid 1980s. He and his wife Dede dedicated many years to the game of Beep Baseball, both in Oklahoma City and on the National level. Dan was an umpire and was instrumental in bringing structure and professionalism to the NBBA officiating crew. He wrote the first umpire manual in 1991 while serving his first term on the NBBA Board of Directors. Later, he also authored the Official NBBA Rules book in 1998. In 1997 and again in 1998, Dan was part of an NBBA team who made a couple of trips to Taipei, Taiwan to introduce the game of beep baseball to those who are blind and visually impaired in that nation. Mr. Tracy provided extensive umpire training to the Taiwanese to get prepared to host the first ever beep baseball tournament held in Taiwan in May, 1998. In 2000, Taiwan then hosted the NBBA World Series and Dan again served as head umpire while teaching and training local officials.

In 1992 Dan Tracy's dedication to the game of Beep Baseball was recognized as he was awarded the Jim Quinn Award at the World Series in Minneapolis, MN. A further example of Mr. Tracy's faithful service to those who are blind and visually challenged and the sport of Beep Baseball was his commitment to helping out with the local Oklahoma City Regional Tournament, usually held each June, for numerous years. This was capped off by Dan helping host the 1998 World Series of Beep Baseball in Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

Dan Tracy retired from officiating in 2003 but, his service and his lasting impact to the game has not been forgotten. This led to the NBBA Board of Directors to conceive an award to honor those officials and special unsung volunteers who many times are overlooked.

On March 6, 2004 the Dan Tracy Award was established to recognize the outstanding field official at each World Series tournament. Field officials include scorekeepers, base switch operators, base judges and field and head umpires.

The Head Umpire usually selects the Dan Tracy Awardee(s) each year.

THE LEGACY OF...

Jim Quinn

As one of the founders of the NBBA, Jim Quinn was considered one of the best players in the history of the NBBA. Known as the “Ted Williams” of Beep Baseball, Mr. Quinn was a powerful hitter and an all-around good athlete.

More importantly, Jim Quinn was the embodiment of the NBBA goal of enabling those who are blind or sight impaired to reach their full potential through participation in athletic competition. Jim Quinn’s life is a model for all of us.

A gifted athlete before he lost his sight to Diabetes, Jim did not shy away from any challenge. His love of sports enabled him to overcome his impairment and lead his life to the fullest. Always humble, Jim was always willing to help others demonstrating a willingness to share his many friends’ problems. He dedicated five years to the sport of Beep Baseball, a game he loved very much. Both on and off the field of competition Jim’s service to those who are blind and visually impaired remains an inspiration to players and volunteers alike. An award given to Jim Quinn in 1975 sums up how much he was admired and why this award is given in his honor. It said “Jim Quinn. A man whose blindness only made him a bigger winner”. This is the essence of Jim Quinn the athlete but, most of all Jim Quinn the person; He is a role model for us all and this is why the Jim Quinn Award was so named.

The spirit of Jim Quinn is that of courage and humility, of service to others, of leadership by example and deed, inspiration by overcoming adversity and by always giving 100% effort, sportsmanship, and dedication to promoting sports for the visually impaired.

Jim Quinn’s positive impact on the lives of others happened during his lifetime and now is his lasting legacy. His greatness lives through this award and each recipient is the torch bearer of his legacy.

SPORTSMANSHIP AWARD

The 1993-94 Awards Committee was chaired by John Lykowski Sr., Bob Bigger, Jeanette Bigger & Ron Bruns.

Their work set in motion and the NBBA Board approved of the formation of the Sportsmanship Award and at the August 10, 1993 General Assembly in Austin the Award was approved and started in 1994 at Ft. Lauderdale.

Originally submitted by longtime Arizona volunteer and NBBA Umpire George Haws, "A monetary Team Sportsmanship Award is to be awarded to the team that best qualifies in the following two categories,

A. Individual players and

B. Team attitude and conduct on and off the field".

As a result of this, each year a team is chosen to have its World Series fees paid the following year.
